Distracted Driving Is No Laughing Matter.

That "LOL" Text Cost:

Distracted Driving Fine	$280
Fixing My Car	$4,532
Insurance Increase	$500
Lost Wages	$1,500
Physiotherapy	$1,800
TOTAL:	$8,612

Was it worth it?

Did You Know:

- On March 18, 2014, the fine for distracted driving will increase from $155 to $280 to help curb the use of cellphones and other distractions while driving. Do your part and keep your hands off the handset while driving.
- Using your phone while stopped at a red light is against the law - and also potentially dangerous.
- According to the Ontario Provincial Police, distracted driving was responsible for more roadway fatalities than impaired driving in Ontario in 2013. The cost is too high.
